

HMB ENDEAVOUR VISITS GEELONG

In early February 2016, the Australian built replica of James Cook's HMB Endeavour visited Geelong waters for the first time in recent years. The Royal Geelong Yacht Club was on hand to welcome the ship as she entered Corio Bay, a flotilla of Members' boats greeting the crew as they arrived. The Australian National Maritime Museum is such an important part of preserving our maritime history, and we look forward to welcoming the Endeavour back to Geelong in the very near future!
